Lots of bands play to a click on stage, especially when syncing backing tracks or lights.

Who hears the click

The drummer almost always does, and many bands share metronome it.

Rehearse with it

Practise the full set with a click, and metronome decide each song's tempo, and write it on the set list.

Tips

Use a clear sound such as a woodblock or cowbell and set the volume just loud enough. Count in with one bar of click.

Practising at home with a browser metronome makes playing to a click on stage feel natural.
