- Court Representation: If your case goes to trial, having a seasoned trial attorney can significantly affect the outcome.

Initial Consultation: What to Expect

The journey typically begins with an initial consultation—a crucial step where you discuss your case with the attorney.

Preparing for Your Consultation

1. Gather Documentation: Bring any relevant documents, including police reports, medical records, and insurance information.

Types of Evidence Used:

- Police Reports
- Eyewitness Testimonies
- Traffic Camera Footage

This evidence will help establish whether you were partially or fully at fault.

Negotiating with Insurance Companies

Once liability is established, your attorney will begin negotiations with insurance companies on your behalf.

Why Negotiate?

Insurance companies aim to minimize payouts; thus, having an attorney ensures they do not take advantage of you.

Key Negotiation Strategies

- Presenting strong evidence
- Keeping detailed records of expenses
- Utilizing expert testimonies if necessary

Steps Involved in Filing a Lawsuit:

1. Drafting the Complaint
2. Filing with the Court
3. Serving Notice to Defendants

An experienced attorney can streamline this process and ensure all protocols are followed correctly.

Preparing for Trial: What You Should Know

If your case goes to trial, preparation is key.

Trial Process Overview:
