A few signs usually point toward replacement rather than Dallas Windows & Doors another repair:

- Fogging between panes that keeps returning
- Drafts or hot spots near the glass
- Frames that swell, warp, or no longer lock properly
- Visible rot, corrosion, or seal failure
- A window style that clashes with the house and cannot be corrected with small changes

For Dallas homeowners, the smartest approach is usually to solve the performance issue and preserve the architecture at the same time. That is the balance that keeps a mid-century modern home looking true to itself while making it more comfortable in July, quieter during storm season, and easier to live with year-round.