

Moving out: Giving notice

If you want to move out, you must give proper notice. You must:

- choose the right date to end your rental agreement, which is called the termination date,
- include certain information in a written notice, and
- give the notice to your landlord on time.

Is there a form that I can use to give notice?

In most cases, you can use Form N9: Tenant's Notice to End the Tenancy. You can find this form and other forms at <https://tribunalsontario.ca/ltb/forms>.

How much notice do I have to give to move out?

The amount of notice you must give depends on how long your rental agreement is for. The rules are the same if you have a written rental agreement or if you do not have one.

There are special rules to end your tenancy in February or March. To end your tenancy on the last day in February, you must give notice no later than January 1. To end your tenancy on the last day of March, you must give notice on no later than February 1.

These special rules apply to one-year rentals and month-to-month rentals. They do not apply to weekly rentals and retirement or care home rentals.
